

Dr. Jesper Balslev, Dänemark, Autor von „Die Analogisierungsverwaltung“, Workshop „The Right to Disconnect“:

It was great to be able to participate at the conference. It is common in educational circles to state that digitization permeates more and more aspects of human existence and society, but it is much more uncommon to reflect on what this means, how we should react to it, and how alternative visions of digitization could or should unfold. Waldorf Montessori Nature Pedagogues are a driving force in realizing there are concrete risks to digitizing education and are using their creativity and professional experience to develop alternatives. This is something many more actors should be engaged in. It was very affirming to see how people from all pedagogical approaches came together in Alfter and found so much common ground...
